

"The whole world heard this explosion. This is the scenario of the future. No museum in any part of the world can feel secure from now on."

---Antonio Paolucci, director of all state museums in Florence, Italy, in response to the terrorist bomb at The Uffizi at 1:04 A.M. on May 27, 1993. It killed five people, caused $37 million in structural damage to the building, instantly removed from existence three masterpieces, seriously damaged 37 other works, and dug a crater 9' 9" in diameter and 6' 6" deep in the street outside.

A reminder to our clients to stay alert and be prepared.
Steve Keller and Associates, Inc. Museum Security Consultants (386) 673-5034
555 Granada Blvd. G-3 Ormond Beach, Florida USA 32174